Art Club

The Galion High School Art Club helps promote and maintain a love of fine and visual art. It is an informal group, with the intention of seeking real-life art in museums, galleries, and society in general.

Art club has taken field trips to numerous places, including the Frank Lloyd Wright Falling Waters home in Pennsylvania, to the Cleveland Museum of Art, to the Alan Cottrill sculpture studio in Zanesville, Ohio. This provides enrichment for the Art classes at GHS.

Art club also partakes of philanthropic endeavors. Last spring, art club students created numerous Sculpey clay pins, which were sold as "Houses for Haiti", in order to raise funds to donate to the Red Cross. The money was given to the country of Haiti to assist in recovery after the earthquake. Meetings are held as needed to discuss organizing field trips, or to work on projects.
